Just writing to say that I joined Naval Club a couple of months ago and have not seen any thing that is untoward i.e. children playing up, fights etc.

In fact, I go down mainly Sunday dinner times to play card bingo and bingo and the children during this time are exceptional (quiet).

I cannot see for the life of me where these complaints come from. I have been barracks from South Africa to Berlin stationed there in the Paras and one bar in South Africa had wire mesh over the optics to stop the glasses smashing the spirits. It's the most friendly club I've ever been in.

I haven't encountered one case of an argument in there and the people that sit outside is mainly because they smoke and I haven't seen one person drunk and people that go home no one goes out shouting or making a noise.

Its beyond me where these complaints come from.
